

RENDEZVOUS WITH MADNESS FESTIVAL

10-20 OCTOBER 2019

WORKMAN ARTS THEATRE AND CHAPEL

651 DUFFERIN STREET (CLOSEST INTERSECTION IS DUNDAS & DUFFERIN)

This venue is sadly not wheelchair accessible

The Workman Arts Theatre and Chapel are both located at Workman Arts, situated in the St. Anne's Parish Hall at 651 Dufferin Street. The building is on the east side of Dufferin Street, just north of Dundas. The building is set slightly back from the street with a wide walkway leading to the steps leading up to the front door.

There are 6 steps from street level to the door. Once inside the door, there are an additional 5 steps to get to the box office. The theatre doors are just to the right of the box office.

Washrooms are located downstairs from the theatre. The female-identified washroom can be accessed by exiting the theatre door on the north side of the theatre (on the box office side), taking the first set of stairs (5 steps) down, then another flight of 14 steps to the lower level. The male-identified washroom can be accessed by exiting the theatre door on the south side of the theatre (opposite the box office side), and taking two flights of stairs down to the lower level (first flight is 5 steps, second flight is 15 steps).

The held space for this venue is located adjacent to the male-identified washroom. You can take the same path described above to get there and there will be signage on the door to help direct you.

To get to the chapel for Intangible Adorations: Experience the Icon, you can take the path to the theatre box office. Volunteers will guide you from the box office around the building to the outside entrance off of the south parking lot that comes up between the Skey Room and the Chapel. This entrance has one step from the parking lot into the landing, and then 9 steps up to the Skey Room (doors on the right of the landing) where you will wait. Throughout the experience, the audience will be guided towards different parts of the room, and will be ushered into the adjacent Chapel for the finale.
